The site contains outlying dwellings that are not part of the continuous form of Brogborough, the site includes a small cluster of residential dwellings but these are detached from the main settlement envelope, the site is mostly agricultural land.
The site lies to the North West of Campton, situated to the back of existing residential dwellings that face Priory Road. The site itself is contained by the existing settlement envelope to the south and west and is well related to the main settlement. The site includes residential curtilage that is relatively large in scale within an also relatively large scale residential garden. However, the existing settlement envelope cuts the garden in half, using no defensible boundary to help define the line between the settlement and the countryside. Therefore the remainder of the residential garden will be included in order to provide a more robust defensible boundary that follows the fence line of the garden, which will represent a clearer edge to the settlement and the countryside.
